If for no other reason than having to not listen to someone harping at you about how you blew out your back or your knee moving boxes and furniture, you might as well just relinquish the task to the professionals. Why risk life, limb and that fancy pool table just to move a bunch of stuff when with a big enough truck and two professional movers, you can have it done quickly and easily. And you don't have to listen to that "I told you so" incessant harping!

But Movers And Trucks Cost Money

You're breaking my heart. Are you serious? Here's what, you don't have to borrow your friend's truck, you don't have to wait until the weekend or just the right time of day, you're guaranteed satisfactory service and your valuables are treated with respect and are insured.

The efficiency and professionalism utilized by trucking companies far surpasses your drunken buddies, fragile items will be treated as such, and despite what you might think, movers and trucks do work for affordable rates. Trucks are usually available between 4 and 10 tons and can range from approximately $80 to $110 for the services of two able bodied men. An extra guy and fuel levies will incur additional charges, but you're still better off letting someone else that knows what they're doing do what it is they do.

Questions To Ask A Moving Service

As mentioned in the first paragraph, you want to ask about insurance. Even when it comes to professionals, sometimes bad things can happen. A truck accident or someone slips and drops something; basically any number of things can threaten the well being of your belongings. Of course, a reputable trucking company works to provide the kind of service where these things happen on a minimal basis, but you must make sure that the company is insured just in case.

As also previously mentioned, you want to ask about any extra charges such as an extra man or fuel levees. And technically you should be able to find out any information you need online as well as reviews from people who have already utilized the service which you are considering. This is the beauty of the Internet. You can check out almost any company or service way ahead of time and many companies offer discounts if you book online.

Just A Few More Things To Check On

Find out how to file a complaint if necessary and exactly how you'll be required to pay for the services. Will you have to do all of the packing or will they come in and pack things up for you? Will there be a discount if you do some of the work yourself? Find out what happens if they mess up on their own guarantee. If you need to cancel, find out how much time they need so that you don't get charged. Make sure you get the kind of documentation that you require if you're going to be reimbursed for this move. Be sure that workers are covered by workman's compensation insurance just in case the unthinkable happens!
