Roger James Hamilton and His Advocacy of Nature Being in Charge of Wealth Creation by Corwin Smith

Article published on December 13th 2011 | Goal Setting

Roger James Hamilton discovered the relation between the all pervasive nature and the activity of wealth creation. And this was the watershed revelation that he proposed to the world and the world accepted it with all the confidence that could be talked about. One of the theories that really opened the gates of prosperity for millions of people around the world who tried to understand the words that this man was saying and the words and the strategies that this man had written in his theories was the theory of Wealth Dynamics. And it was through this theory that he managed to convince the world that howsoever the man try to keep an upper hand on everything that comes in his sight, ultimately it is the Nature that has the last laugh.

Through the theory of wealth dynamics the nature plays a very important role in the activities of the human being. And the same applies to the activity of wealth creation no matter to which domain of finance the individual might be belonging to. The entire emphasis of the theory of wealth dynamics is on finding the natural flow of the humans. And in order to help the individual in getting introduced to his natural flow he devised the wdprofile test that is one of the finest tests among all the personality tests that have been devised till date. Once the individual is though with the test he would come to know the real personality type that he is, in other words it means that the individual would get to know the natural flow within him that would help him in choosing the profession that would help him in attaining the wealth that he so very much desires. And that was precisely what Roger James Hamilton wanted.

And once the individual has realized the right profession that would be in accordance with his natural flow he would realize that the word Hard -Work is nothing more than a blank expression. Because once he would start progressing on the appropriate profession he would only be doing what he was meant to do. The individual would rather than working would be enjoying the work that he is doing. Roger James Hamilton through his theory has brought alive the real meaning of work, the philosophy behind the concept of work and how an individual should go about choosing the work that is in consonance with the natural flow.  And then the individual would realize that the thought of the creation of wealth that he had been cultivating for far so long has disappeared and in its place a new and a beautiful concept of the realization of the flow of nature has taken root. And that would put an end to the endless and sometimes the ruthless chase after wealth.
