Top 5 iPad Accessories by Clinton

Article published on June 18th 2012 | Hardware

There are lots of iPad accessories available today and some of them are really useful. The most important accessories are the ones that protect your precious gadget. However, because the list of accessories is so broad, this article tries to focus on top 5 of them.

1. iPad carrying case. It is obvious that you want to keep your iPad safe and protected while you travel so a carrying case looks like the perfect solution for this purpose. There hundreds of models available on the market and they come in various shapes sizes and colors as well;

2. iPad screen protector. This is one of the most popular and useful accessory that can be bought from the market. Such a screen protector will keep your iPad safe from dirt particles, dust and scratches as well as extending its lifespan. Definitely, a screen protector is a must-have, especially if you use your iPad a lot of hours every day;

3. Wireless keyboard. If you have a lot of writings to do on your iPad and you want to protect the screen, you can buy a wireless keyboard that usually comes with a stylus as well and make the typing process much easier. There are plenty of such accessories on the market today and their prices are very different;

4. iPad waterproof case. The title says it all. You may want to protect your iPad against all kinds of liquids that can possible harm your beloved gizmo. When completely sealed the case provide 100% protection against water, coffee, beer and everything else and it doesn't affect the design of the iPad either.

5. iPad sound system. The iPad itself has a speaker that produce quality sounds but it would be enough if you plan to throw a party next weekend? That is why some companies have designed different sound systems on which the iPad itself can be mounted and connected. The power output is sufficient to shatter the glass if you wish so, but it is not recommended.

Remember that this list features only the most useful accessories that can be bought for an iPad. There are hundred more others but sometimes their purpose is absent. For example, you can buy different devices that hold your iPad on the wall or joysticks designed only for a few games to be played with. If you have a decent budget and you plan to buy accessories for iPad, keep in mind to purchase only what you really need and avoid wasting money on accessories that are not useful at all.

For example, if you haven't bought a protective case yet, now it is the time. It will ensure a greater lifespan of your iPad and you will not experience problems with it so often. If you are lucky enough, you can find different combos of accessories on the market that offer protective cases and wireless keyboards in the same package and at a discount price. Just make sure that you regularly "hunt" for such opportunities on the internet as well if you want to save money.
