The need for medical transcription services is widely felt by overburdened medical professionals. Outsourced medical transcription has now turned into a booming industry, offering significant benefits to health care providers

Who Can Avail

All kinds of health care facilities such as multi specialty clinics, individual practices, group practices can use the services of medical transcription firms for all their documentation and transcription requirements. Experienced service providers offer a wide range of services such as dictation capture and document distribution for various specialties such as plastic surgery, cardiology, orthopedics, dermatology, gastroenterology, hematology, neurology, oncology, psychology etc.

Services

Medical transcription firms offer important transcription services such as patient history and transcription of reports relating to physical examination, transcription of medical procedure notes, progress note, clinic notes, follow up notes etc. They also provide error free transcription of lab reports, scan reports, x ray reports which are very important for health care professionals to provide the correct treatment solutions for their patients. Medical transcription companies also transcribe referrals, letters, discharge summaries and narratives.

Specialty surgical centers can also make use of medical transcription services. Centers may need transcriptions of various diagnostic reports, and reports relating to pre operation and post operation diagnoses. The date of performance of surgical procedures, the indications and findings during the surgery, operative reports, laboratory and x ray reports, and discharge summaries can all be expertly handled by medical transcription companies. Health care professionals can concentrate their time and efforts saving lives, leaving documentation tasks to other responsible individuals.

Why Opt for Transcription

By opting for outsourcing of transcription tasks, health care specialists can economize their operations and reduce expenses on training and maintaining a staff of transcription specialists. They do not have to invest in transcription equipment and software that is required to complete transcription work in their facility. Off shore outsourced services reduce the workload burden of skilled health care professionals. It has been observed that by outsourcing transcription work, the productivity and efficiency of health care professionals has improved. All these factors have made outsourcing transcriptions an extremely attractive and compelling proposition.

Off shore companies devote their time and energy to transcription tasks alone. They have a staff of trained and skilled personnel who can handle all kinds of specialty reports and turn over the transcribed files in quick time. Security and confidentiality is considered vital by these companies who have the correct systems in place to ensure this.
