

Article Side

Chemical Peels and Skin - Friends or Enemies by George Benson

Article published on January 2nd 2012 | Health

With chemicals being used in almost everything and our skin is now exposed to a number of chemicals every day so how do we decide which chemical is beneficial for our skin and which chemical would be harmful for our skin in the long run. So before anyone plans to get a chemical peel done one should decide whether this process is right for them or not. Chemical peel is also known as chemexfoliation or derma peel and it is a procedure that uses the chemical solution to improve the appearance and the quality of one's skin.

chemical peels burlington is also very important for those people who want to reduce the fine lines and freckles that appear on one's skin after a certain point of time. It also treats the scarring appearance of the age spots that appear on one's skin and after getting the chemical peel done it also improves the texture of the skin and the color of the skin. There are also certain chemical conditions that do not treat the deep wrinkles that are present in the skin, sagging skin as a peel cannot help you if your skin needs the basic maintenance that has to be done on a regular basis.

In chemical peels Burlington a chemical solution is applied like glycolic acid, trichloroacetic acid, salicylic acid that is used on the facial skin. The chemical solution then gets some blisters on the skin and once the blister appears on the skin then the blister will peel off eventually. The peeling process depends upon the harshness of the chemical and the recovery process will also take a longer time may be a couple of weeks. In some cases the facial skin will require a certain amount of bandaging and the recovery period takes more time and it is more painful.

After the chemical peeling process it is a very important to get regular check ups from the doctor so as to prevent any kind of infections in the long run. But once you have fully recovered from the process you will get a fresh and new skin which was always present under the skin. But it should be noted that chemical peel are not for everyone and the people who have a dark complexion should avoid it as that will prove harsh for their skin. chemical peels Burlington suit best for these who have a fair skin and the results would also be better for those who have a fair complexion. Chemical peels and laser hair removal Burlington are all chemical procedures which involve a lot of time and it should be done only if only one is sure. Laser hair removal is also done by many people and it has solved the hairy issues of many people.

Their skills and expertise are part of every treatment, where they meet with each patient and personally perform all injection treatments - an advantage that truly sets Dermetics apart from other clinics. It's the difference between a good result and a great result!

Article Source:

<http://www.articleside.com/health-articles/chemical-peels-and-skin-friends-or-enemies.htm> - Article Side

George Benson - About Author:

Dermetics is home to Dr. Channy Muhn and Dr. Nathan Rosen, leading experts in cosmetic dermatology and laser procedures like a chemical peels burlington, a laser hair removal Burlington and he has helped redefine industry standards by developing techniques and applications that deliver outstanding results.

Article Keywords:
chemical peels, laser hair removal

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!