Hair has always been considered a crowning glory by the fairer race since the days back when the human race started taking its stand to form civilizations and the hair loss problem too is that old. Though science explains the reason for these hair fall problems and also explains the fact that losing about a 100 strands daily is normal, but still losing even a single stand becomes a cause of panic not only for woman, but also men. However, for people who are losing a significant amount of hair that is quite noticeable, the ordeal is quite horrifying. The problem of hair fall has found an effective cure in the form of hair transplants not only for women, but also for men. Though the problem is not such a big problem in case of men as is in the case of women.

The society has set its particular standards when it comes to beauty of a woman and a significant part of it is given to the lustrous look of healthy and beautiful hair. There is a bulk of a choice when it comes to finding the best option for hair transplant for a woman that helps them in having the beauty of the hair restored. Hair autotransplantation in fact is a form of hair transplants where the donor is also a recipient. Hair transplants, however, that has the donor and the recipient different is known as allotransplantation. Skin graft is a very common form of hair autotransplantation.

Gone are the days when hair thinning was a problem faced only by men, as the days pass and the planet is getting profoundly covered with pollution, more and more women are facing the problem of hair thinning. Prevention though could have been a lot more cost effective as opposed to hair transplants costs, but then the problem of pollution is not helping in any ways.

Though the hair transplants costs were very high when the concept got introduced at the first place, the recent era has seen a phenomenal reduction in the hair autotransplantation or hair transplants costs. The problem still is the same, hair transplants cost though has reduced in the recent past and the reduction too has been at a very high rate, but still the cost of the hair autotransplantation is not affordable for a lot of people. There are other more cost effective and inconspicuous ways to control hair loss, but the problem is that they take a lot of time to provide results as opposed to hair autotransplantation that gives result in a very short time span. The best part of these cost effective treatment is the fact that they do not always require internal treatments of chemical or hormones to achieve the look that they are seeking.

Hair autotransplantation or hair transplants costs might not be very cost effective way of getting hair regrown on the bald patches of head, but they have been known to provide unbeatable results that are almost permanent as opposed to other more cost effective ways of controlling hair loss.
