Article published on July 23rd 2012 | Health

Itâ€™s a fact that there are several pre-WW buildings around us these days. Several of them have a huge content of asbestos since that was among the prime materials for construction back then. Durability aside, today it has been found that exposure to asbestos can lead to several debilitating illnesses including a cancer that is specifically caused by asbestos.

It has now become legally mandatory for all premises to have an asbestos survey conducted. Should you choose not to do so, then you open the floodgates for legal cases to be slapped on you should it be proven that your asbestos on your premises was the cause of illness. An asbestos survey is best conducted by an authorized centre. You can get the names of such agencies from your local authorities. Make sure that they are authorized by the government. This will ensure that they follow the latest of rules associated with an asbestos survey.

You will find many a great asbestos survey company based in the UK. There are two kind of survey. One is done of premises that will have a large number of people functioning there or passing through. The other is done before the demolition of a structure. This is to ensure that the amount of asbestos present does not lead to unnecessary and harmful exposure to the material.

An asbestos survey is conducted when there is a holiday or when the structure has a low number of people in it. The surveyor first examines that entire premise on a surface level and makes a note of where he would like to probe in deeper. After this, there is a room by room or unit by unit evaluation that is done. Tiles are removed, nooks and crannies looked into, crevices probed and false ceilings opened up. Every amount of asbestos found is traced, measured for its volume and noted down.

At the end of the survey, a detailed report on the presence of asbestos is given to the client. Solutions are also provided on what can be done. Once you have taken care of all the asbestos as prescribed, you will need to have regular surveys conducted to ensure that you have done a thorough job. There may be some times that the asbestos is in such a place that it cannot be removed without damaging your structure. At times like these, you are given the means to handle the asbestos and minimize the impact it has.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/health-articles/finding-good-asbestos-survey-companies.htm - Article Side

Eric Lewellyn - About Author:
Welcome to Asbestos Survey Consultancy - a this is a great asbestos survey company based in the UK. We offer our clients the high level of professional service they require along with that unique personal touch. Asbestos Survey Services specialise in Asbestos Removal, great asbestos survey, Legionella and Energy consultancy in Durham, and Newcastle. For more information visit our official website a www.asbestosconsultancy.net.

Article Keywords:
this is a great asbestos survey company based in the UK

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!