Get Screened for Oral Cancer at a Dental Facility in Piedmont, California by Michael Griffin

Article published on April 1st 2012 | Health

Piedmont, California is one of the most affluent places in the entire state, which is why residents can expect top of the line dental care services. From routine prophylaxis to complicated dental implant surgery, Piedmont dentists look after their patients'™ best interests. Sadly, a lot of people still neglect to undergo oral cancer screening, an important part of preventive oral care.

According to oralcancerfoundation.org 37,000 Americans are diagnosed and 8,000 people die from oral cancer each year. One person dies from oral cancer every hour, and only about half of newly diagnosed patients will survive for five years or longer.

For this reason, people are highly encouraged to ask their dentist for oral cancer screening. After all, the primary nature of dentistry is preventive care, and early detection is the key to thwarting oral cancer.

It should also be noted that heavy drinkers and smokers are predisposed to oral cancer. Dentists therefore advise their patients to give up these destructive vices and consider oral cancer screening as early as possible. The process is a routine procedure, but should anything come up, additional tests would be required.

A Piedmont dentist can incorporate oral screening as part of a routine dental checkup. The dentist usually surveys the mouth for suspicious looking sores. They also check for lumps and other things that may seem suspect. It should be noted that most people develop abnormal oral sores, but that does not necessarily indicate cancerous growth. In such cases, a biopsy may be performed to accurately determine a patient's™ oral health condition.

Before requesting for an oral screening by a Piedmont dentist, make sure that it is covered by your insurance. Special tests conducted by dentists as a way to screen for oral screening is not always covered so better double check the policy before scheduling an appointment. There are some tests that may be covered by your insurance, especially if you are at high risk of having the disease or if any abnormalities are found in your mouth.

It may be a cliché, but prevention really is better than cure. If you think you are at risk for oral cancer"especially if you smoke or drink frequently"have yourself checked in at a Piedmont dentistry facility. If you are interested to learn more about this disease as well as the processes involved with oral cancer screening, you could find helpful information at sites like oralcancerfoundation.org and mayoclini
