Losing at least one tooth can be very infuriating, especially if you have complete set of teeth your entire life. Your appearance is the first thing which is on the line. Flashing a grin with missing teeth can ruin any photo or obstruct possibilities for social interaction. Above all, your biting and chewing functions become afflicted. Luckily, trusted Atlanta dentists can provide you with a long term solution: dental implants. The said treatment requires the crafting and placement of synthetic tooth replacements in the mouth, which appropriately become replacements for actual teeth.

Dental implants have two parts: one is the screw, and the other is the false tooth. The screw is normally made of titanium, but it can be made of other materials. Dentists prefer titanium as it connects correctly with the teeth. It is placed in the jaw bone, while the false tooth is attached to the implant. In placing implants, the dentist supervises local anesthesia for the person's convenience.

There are different types of dental implants you can receive from the dentist. The first is the subperiosteal implant, which is created for people who do not have sufficient bone width or depth to support a root form or plate form implant. The second is the root form implant which is utilized if there is ample bone width and depth. Root form implants are among the widely used implants, and seems like a natural tooth root. Lastly, there's the plate form implant; its length and flatness help it become an excellent choice for patients whose jawbone is too narrow to undergo grafting.

Dental implants can help you avoid several dental conditions that result from neglecting dental hygiene. These problems include congenital defects, decay, gum disease, and trauma. Moreover, dental implants seem natural. They look so natural that you will not realize that you've shed a tooth. Ask a cosmetic dentist atlanta residents go to for further information.

It is essential to go to your reliable cosmetic dentist Atlanta GA endorses to find out if you are a good candidate for implants. During your visit, your dentist will evaluate the width and depth of your jawbone. Oral exams will also be conducted to search for indications of any oral disease. Implantation may not be a great option if you have gone through recent chemotherapy, have uncontrolled diabetes, smoke regularly, low sinuses, or bone marrow cancer.

Your respected cosmetic dentist in Atlanta may help you attain normal chewing and biting through effective and safe dental implantation. You will be helped through the entire preimplantation, implantation, and postimplantation stages. Moreover, the dentist will ensure that you are happy with the process, so there's no reason to set the dental visit aside.
