The benefit of purchasing a life cover is that it provides compensation to your family after your death. You need not to worry about their future in case you pass away. It is a contractual based agreement between you and an insurance company, according to which a company is liable to pay compensation to the beneficiaries and a policy owner (you) is liable to pay insurance premium. The policy may lapse and an insured may be considered as "Off-Risk", if the premium isn't paid on time. Therefore, the beneficiaries of a cover will not receive anything after insured's death. The demand for compensation can be made after the death of an insured or if he suffered from a terminal injury and suppose to die in the next 12 months.
