Dental implants

If one has lost teeth then dental implant a new technology is more used by prosthodontist as compare to other dentures and bridges. Dentures are estimated as comparatively less at chewing along with the current comfort and oral hygiene challenges. Whereas dental bridges occupies the grinding down of adjoining sustaining teeth, that can turn into visible after sometime.

Dental implants are the advanced technique which is also durable and a grand alternative to the dentures. It is mainly a procedure which is concerned with the artificial tooth and root replacement for bearing a resemblance to single or more missing tooth. Kinds of Dental Implants

There are mainly two kinds of dental implants offered by dentist in Delhi such as

• Osseointegrated

• Fibrointegrated

Osseointegrated is mainly prepared from titanium which is associated with the connection of living bone with artificial implants. Titanium is used because it has also the same properties of bones. This process is more used comparatively to fibrointegrated.

Fibrointegrated is known as the previous adaptation of implants that comprises blade and subperiosteal implants. This kind of implanting could not be successful alike Osseointegrated.

In this present era, dental implant has been proven as the surgical procedure as it is the part of cosmetic surgery. For a successful implanting process there are three terms which are merged such as post, abutment and crown.
