Article published on January 24th 2012 | Health

The main function of gall bladder is to act as the storage for bile juices which are quite necessary for the digestion of the fat consumed by us. Jaundice is undoubtedly the most common of the various symptoms of problems related to gall bladder. When you become sick of jaundice, the first thing to suspect is your gall bladder your liver after that the main symptom of this disease is the color of skin turning to yellow or orange, depending on the type or intensity of the disease. At times, eyes may appear pale. This disease occurs when your liver is incapable to convert the old blood into bile. This happens as the liver cannot perform accordingly or the gall bladder is blocked due to some reason.

Pain is another important symptom of gall bladder related problems and is detected by the pain occurring in particular areas of a body. Irregular aching in the center of upper abdomen, below the right ribs. The pain also occurs in the right shoulder and region surrounding it. The pain is accompanied with queasiness and vomiting. The pain usually persists for more than hours. The sternness and regularity of the pain vary each time..

Occurrence of gall stones is another gall bladder symptom. They are produced due to the hardening of cholesterol in absence of adequate amount of bile juice that neutralizes cholesterol. These stones block the bile ducts causing all the problems. There are various symptoms of gallstones disorders like nausea, pain in the abdominal region, intolerance in digestion of the food having high fat-content, inflation of the abdominal region, belching and digestive disorders to name a few. Generally, gallstones do not cause any harm and are only detected with the help of X-rays. But gall bladder pain due to the gallstones should be immediately treated by a doctor.
