When you've lived with a complete set of teeth for many years, losing at least one of them can be very disheartening. To begin with, it ruins your appearance. Flashing a smirk with missing teeth can destroy any photo or hamper possibilities for social interaction. Most of all, your biting and chewing functions become affected. Thankfully, trusted Atlanta dentists can offer you a long term solution--and these are dental implants. The said treatment requires the crafting and placement of synthetic tooth replacements in the mouth, which appropriately become replacements for real teeth.

Dental implants have two parts: one is the screw, and the other is the false tooth. The screw is generally made of titanium, but it can be manufactured from other materials. Dentists choose titanium because it connects effectively with the teeth. It is positioned in the jaw bone, while the false tooth is connected to the implant. In placing implants, the dentist supervises local anesthesia for the person's comfort.

There are different kinds of dental implants the dentist can serve you. The first is the subperiosteal implant, which is suitable for people who do not possess enough bone width or depth to support a root form or plate form implant. The second is the root form implant which is applied if there is sufficient bone depth and width. Root form implants are one of the popular implants, and appears like a natural tooth root. Lastly, there's the plate form implant; its length and flatness make it a perfect choice for patients whose jawbone is too narrow to undertake grafting.

Dental implants can help you prevent various dental problems that result from ignoring dental hygiene. Such problems involve congenital disorders, gum disease, decay, and trauma. Additionally, dental implants look natural. They lok so natural that you may not realize that you've shed a tooth. Ask a cosmetic dentist atlanta residents go to for additional details.

It is essential to go to your reliable cosmetic dentist Atlanta GA recommends to determine if you are a suitable candidate for implants. On your visit, your dentist will look at the width and depth of your jawbone. Oral exams will also be conducted to search for indications of any oral disease. Implantation may not be a good option if you have been subject to recent chemotherapy, have uncontrolled diabetes, smoke regularly, low sinuses, or bone marrow cancer.

Your respected cosmetic dentist in Atlanta may help you regain normal chewing and biting through effective and safe dental implantation. You will be assisted through the entire preimplantation, implantation, and postimplantation phases. More importantly, the dentist will ensure that you are comfortable with the procedure, so there's no reason to miss the dental visit.
