The Best Reasons Why You Should Get Replacement Crowns by Elvera Matos

Article published on March 29th 2012 | Health

Most people know the different types of teeth: molars, incisors, canines, and premolars. They also know about basic dental treatments like teeth cleaning and fillings. However, not everyone is familiar with dental crowns.

A dental crown is a tooth cover placed over a tooth that has been restored through a root canal or over a dental implant. Crowns are also called caps because they are like a toothâ€™s tight hat that protects it from further damage. They can be made from porcelain, all ceramic or all porcelain, and gold material.

People who had their teeth restored need to get crowns to avoid further injury brought by normal wear and tear. A tooth that needs to be capped is often too damaged to be simply filled. Crowns made from porcelain fused to metal are strong enough to hold a tooth that has been broken. If one has dental bridgework done, the crown can also hold it firmly in place.

There are also other reasons why people get crowns. A Colorado Springs cosmetic dentist caters to clients who want crowns to make their original teeth look better. Teeth that are misshapen or are discolored because of too much smoking or as an effect of certain medications will also benefit from crowns fitted over them.

There are dental offices that can make crowns right in their offices without the need to have it done by dental laboratories. In the office of a cosmetic dentist Colorado Springs has, the dentist can manufacture the crown for the patient in just one day his CEREC lab. This is beneficial to the patient because it saves him time. He can come in and leave with the finished crown. There is also a lesser need for anesthetic shots when the crown is done in a day. Most crowns take two visits to be finished. The best thing is the dentist uses milled ceramic which is a stronger crown material. Milled ceramic wears away at the same rate as our natural teeth enamel. In one-visit crowns, the manufactured crown is a computer generated model so it has tighter seal and is longer lasting.

The average crown lasts five to 15 years depending on the clientâ€™s dental habits. A dentist in Colorado Springs will remind his patient that it is important to observe basic dental hygiene after the crown is placed. Crown made of metal like gold, and gold combined with steel last longer. The strongest types of replacement crowns are expensive but they look natural and can last for 40 years. If you want more information about dental crowns, visit dentalfind.com and yourdentistryguide.com

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/health-articles/the-best-reasons-why-you-should-get-replacement-crowns.htm - Article Side

Elvera Matos - About Author:
For more information, please search a Colorado Springs cosmetic dentist, a cosmetic dentist Colorado Springs and a dentist in Colorado Springs in Google.

Article Keywords:

Colorado Springs cosmetic dentist, cosmetic dentist Colorado Springs, dentist in Colorado Springs

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!