In the U.S., the leading cosmetic surgery that women choose is breast surgery. As reported by the American Society of Plastic Surgery, around 300,000 individuals undergo breast augmentation every year. Patients of cosmetic surgery centers frequently experience an increase in their confidence and a positive change on their outlook in life.

If you reside in San Francisco and you are planning to undergo a breast enhancement procedure, there are numerous plastic surgery centers and hospitals you can select from. Once you see the surgeon and institution you prefer, carry out a lot of research before having an in-depth conversation with the doctor. The breast implants, for example, are a crucial part of breast augmentation. Below are some suggestions regarding how to choose the right implants for you:

Figure out what kind of â€œlookâ€• you want. Before you decided to go under the knife, you probably conjured that image in your mind about how your improved breasts would look like. Regardless if you want it to be like a swimsuit modelâ€™s bosom in mags or just shapely enough to look younger, you have to make certain that itâ€™s the look you would like to live with for a long time. You wouldnâ€™t want spend a whole lot for modifications and risk lying on the operating table several times.

Accomplish the Rice Test. A few surgeons for breast augmentation Bay Area ladies consult regarding implant sizes highly recommend carrying out the Rice Test. Considering that implant volume is calculated in â€œccâ€• (cubic centimeters), the Rice Test permits you to approximate how you will look and feel with various implant sizes by inserting rice bags inside your bra. For every cup size you want to add to your chest area, you have to use about 150cc to 200cc of rice.

Use sizing devices. If you have an additional budget for breast augmentation San Francisco private clinics provide, you may request breast sizers that are less uncomfortable compared with rice bags but cost much more. These sizing systems are attached to your bra through special straps and fabric tape to make sure that the simulated implants will be in place. In contrast to rice bags, you can put them on beneath your garments during the day and experience the breasts you like before surgery.

Confer with your plastic surgeon. Experts in breast enhancement San Francisco patients believe in are open to addressing questions. Do not hesitate to state your goals. Your surgeon can give professional guidance if what you wish for can be done or how you can get close to your ideal physique.
