Why Hair Pieces are no longer hideous by James Blee

Article published on July 20th 2012 | Health

There was a time when Hair pieces were ridiculous items that tended to draw more attention to baldness than detract from it. You could spot Hair Pieces at five paces; wigs just werenâ€™t that realistic back in the bad old days.

Thankfully Hair Pieces have progressed and new improved versions are available that look absolutely amazing. Long gone are the days when Hair Pieces were itchy, awkward and made you stand out like a sore thumb, today they are just as effective as hair transplant solutions.

Hair Pieces used to be tacky, they made you feel embarrassed but thanks to advances in technology ultra-realistic versions are now viable options.

Where did the Hair pieces of old go wrong?

It doesnâ€™t take a genius to work out where the failings of old Hair Pieces lay. Old fashioned versions of Hair Pieces were made from synthetic materials that bore no resemblance to natural hair. More often than not the Hair Pieces were available in limited sizes so it was a case of make do and mend.

The Hair Pieces were ill fitting and you could see the stitching through the fibres which hardly inspired any type of confidence. Sadly the Hair Pieces failed on every single level and thatâ€™s why big changes were required in the industry.

Modern hair piece technology is a totally different prospect and the great news is custom options are created by experts in hair transplant solutions.

How realistic are the new varieties of Hair pieces?

Made-to-measure Hair Pieces are manufactured to the exact requirements of the customer and youâ€™d have a job distinguishing them from a real head of hair. In fact, modern Hair Pieces are made from natural human hair and custom created to suit all ethnic origins. Today youâ€™ll find Hair Pieces that are state-of-the-art, they look gorgeous and you can wear them on a day-to-day basis. Bought through hair and cosmetic studios modern Hair Pieces provide the wearer with greater confidence, they look totally authentic and thanks to revolutionary vacuum systems you can step out in style wearing a tailored hair piece and have peace of mind knowing itâ€™s not going to slip .
