Definitely counted amongst one of the brave heart adventures is the wild hog hunting. Hogs are largely found in Texas, though of late they have begun to expand. While hunting them, you should expect the unexpected all the time and be on your toes. You will be checking every nook and cranny and the hog might be in the nearby bush.

Hog meat when made in proper manner turn out to be extremely tasty, no wonder that Texas hog hunting is getting popular more than ever.

It is the sheer size of the hog that sends shiver down the throat and even the most seasoned hunters will be very careful with their shot. The shot should be sharp and one hit should do the kill. For the wild hog hunting gets dangerous only when you are tracking an injured wild hog, if it does not get killed with the shot that is. Since they do not bleed much, you need to be very careful as keeping tab on them will get difficult. Even though now there are many actions packed trip organizers, who guarantee as good as real experience, to go on your own into the wild is a bone-chilling experience. Even for the most experienced of trappers, hunting hogs can be a tricky affair every time.

For those whose land is inhabited by the hogs, it can be a real nightmare to go on a texas hog hunting for the simple reason that it is not easy to track them and at night, a time when they move out mainly, the task of eliminating them gets even more difficult. It is rather surreal, but hogs seem to have a liking towards golf courses, that is one place that always seems to be taken to task in Texas by them.
