Are you looking for ways for home improvement? If yes, there are different things you can do. Home decoration/renovation can be as simpler and as massive depending on your choice. But when it comes to roofing, remember it is one of the important aspects of home improvement and somewhat expensive also. There are different types of roofing and each has its own pros and cons also. Letâ€™s discuss them in detail.

Composition Shingles:

If you are looking for roofing options that donâ€™t cause much dent on pocket, this option is good for you. It is mainly composed of fiberglass shingles and asphalt and suit you because of its durability. But in market, this is also available as recycled material.

It is available in different colors and designs. You should think of your interiors first before finalizing the design. But, there are some negative sides also there of this roofing. It is weak in sustaining climate vagaries. The material may shoe cracks and scars in extreme hot. Looks wise also, it doesnâ€™t give tile look.

Wood Shakes

This material imparts natural look to home. It is available in different thicknesses, cut styles, color of wood. There are some benefits related to energy also, if you use this material. On the negative side, it requires more maintenance comparatively. Cost may be high and recycling of wooden shakes canâ€™t be done. But you need to be cautious while using wooden roofing. As it may catch fire easily, they are unrated for safety codes. Spray-on-fire and some other retardants can be used but after some years their efficiency gets decreased. So, if you are choosing wood shakes, be sure to purchase it from a good company that adheres to all norms.

Installing it also comparatively difficult and it depends on the experience of the professional you are hiring. Therefore, you must hire the company after getting to know their expertise level. Shakes from cedar trees are considered good. You may consult professionals the material you should use. Every region may have different requirements as per their specific climate.

Clay

It suits well for modern clean homes. People prefer it because of its looks and durability. It canâ€™t be harmed by insects and have good resistance to burns etc. Markets are packed with many styles, brands and colors and you can choose as per your requirement.

Itâ€™s heavy weight is a major drawback. Depending on the material, it can be so heavy that you may need a separate roof support. Also, with time, its color can get faded. So, these are some its drawbacks that make people hesitate in picking these.

Tiles are very delicate and can break easily. So, while installation and after installation also, they require due care and maintenance. Finally, it is comparatively expensive and donâ€™t suit people looking for affordable options.

There are many other roofing material that you can use as per your requirement. However, you must search properly about their pros and cons before finalizing any. Search for suitable Baltimore roofers. These are professionals who cater to your needs quite well.
