Glass has always been in great demand for making different interior decorating products. There was a time when people used glass only in windows. Now people prefer it for its sleek and modern look, which adds to the beauty of their home. Smart homeowners demand glass kitchen countertops because they make the kitchen look stylish and beautiful.

Glass kitchen countertops are modern, light and sophisticated which add a contemporary look to your kitchen. These are available in a wide variety of designs, shape and texture. You can also personalize them with regard to color or using embedded art. Generally, the natural color is slightly green. These have got polished surface and the edge detailing will surely attract your eyes. These are non-porous which implies that they are stain-proof and also hygienic. There are no seams and they are designed uniquely. You can install it in a number of ways to generate different visual effects. You can also place hot bowls on these glass kitchen countertops. They can absorb heat up to 700 degrees without any cracking. But it is advisable to use protection to ensure long life of these countertops.

Glass itself is unique, classy and functional. You can combine it with stainless steel to create an exceptionally designed kitchen countertop. Glass used for making kitchen countertops is heavy and the thickness varies from $\frac{1}{2}$ inch to 1 inch. They have a greater tensile strength so that you can use them for keeping heavy weights. But it should be kept in mind that falling of a heavy object can shatter or break the glass. Broken glass kitchen countertops must be replaced by a new one as these cannot be repaired for obvious reason. They are prone to fingerprints, watermarks and scratches. Thus they should be regularly cleaned to keep them clean and beautiful. The main risk is of breakage for which you need to take proper care.
