Types of Coffee Machines by Gary Jones

Article published on April 26th 2012 | Home

Looking for an affordable, reliable and effective coffee machine? You need to know about the basic models to identify the right one. Nowadays, you can find a wide range of coffee machines with varied functionality. Unlike kitchenware products, you might not be able to find the right coffee machine according to your expectation and budget in time due to its various models. Each coffee machine model has its own unique features, performance, capability, durability, outlook, size, price and more.

When you are able to distinguish the coffee machines, you might be able to identify the best coffee machine.

Some popular types of coffee machines are listed below:

Espresso and cappuccino makers:

Espresso and cappuccino coffee machines are expensive than other coffee makers due to its ability to brew Espresso and cappuccino. They can be used in home to make specialty coffees with ease. Since, it is expensive you need to pay more attention to its performance to ensure its coffee making ability. Some espresso coffee makers can make regular coffee, while others are limited. When looking for espresso coffee makers, you need to check out its function, brewing capability, size and serving capacity to find the right one.

French coffee press:

It is a traditional coffee maker that doesnâ€™t require electricity or disposable filter for brewing coffee. Since, it is easy to use and affordable; it is still popular among the people.

Percolator Coffee Makers:

It is a steam based coffee maker known for its coffee brewing ability than drip models. Automatic drip coffeemakers effectively replaced percolator coffee makers with its automatic functionality. Besides, percolator coffee machines are available only in limited models.

Drip coffee machine:

Standard drip coffee machines are available in a wide range of models, features, styles and prices. All its beneficial features make it one of the best coffee machines for home usage. When comparing drip coffee maker with specialty coffee makers, drip coffee makers are considered more economical. It usually produces a light bodied coffee in time. For a single person, 4-cup drip coffee makers can be an ideal companion.

Bean to Cup Espresso coffee makers:

If you want to taste fresh coffee, then you need to pick bean to espresso coffee makers. It is automated and easy to operate. However, when itâ€™s up to price it is quite expensive.

Pod coffee maker:

It is a single-serve coffee maker that is easy to use, convenient and brews coffee effectively. It can produce only one serving at a time, so you need to be patient to taste its delicious coffee.

These are some popular coffee machines that are used widely in home, hotels and more.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/home-articles/types-of-coffee-machines.htm - Article Side

Gary Jones - About Author:
When you are looking for a coffee machines pay more attention to its brewing capacity, size and performance rather than price. The author is an expert in the a kitchenware arena and has written many articles regarding a kitchen utensils and cookware in the past.

Article Keywords:
cookware, kitchenware, kitchen utensils, coffee machines

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!