There are a number of Americans who would like to decrease our dependency on oil imports from the Middle East and create jobs in the process, which is why the Consumer Energy Alliance (CEA) created the Keystone Pipeline petition.

In just the past few days, the price of gas has increased by over 40 cents a gallon. Most of us are sick of skyrocketing gas prices. That's why it's time for us to put our collective voices to work and encourage the building of the Keystone XL Pipeline.

The Keystone XL Pipeline project will bring crude oil from the Canadian province of Alberta to the Gulf Coast of Texas. It will be constructed in a line going through South Dakota, Montana, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, and Texas.

Energy experts estimate that The Keystone pipeline could eventually replace half the oil America imports from the Middle East, which will lower the cost of gas for all of us.

Even better, the Keystone XL Pipeline will directly bring jobs to six U.S. States during construction. The Keystone Pipeline Project will do wonders for the U.S. economy with the number of jobs it will create. Some estimate that building the Keystone pipeline would employ 13,000. The project will create 7,000 manufacturing jobs in the U.S. as well.

TransCanada also predicts that areas located along the pipeline will receive a serious economic boost and that there will be 118,000 or so spin off jobs created as a result of the construction of the Keystone Pipeline.

Over 450,000 Americans have written in favor of the Keystone Pipeline so far, According to the Consumer Energy Alliance, and you can be one of those who joins the crusade to get this project under construction.

Want lower gas prices? Sign the Keystone Pipeline Petition from the Consumer Energy Alliance and join the CEA's mailing list. With your help we can encourage President Obama to support the project and help create 20,000 American manufacturing and construction jobs in the process.
