Caution: Fixing a Garage Door by Yourself Can Be Deadly by Kerita Kantz

Article published on April 25th 2012 | Home Improvement

The garage may be the last place you'd think would require any form of maintenance, but maybe you should change that mindset. This is especially true when it comes to the garage door because not maintaining it could potentially be deadly. Therefore, when in doubt about maintaining and repairing garage doors, ask for the services of a professional.

The upward lifting garage door was reportedly invented C.G. Johnson in 1921. Since then, many residents in the United States have enjoyed the convenience of the garage door. This includes the good folks over at Salt Lake City, Utah where the garage door is common in their homes. This is the same reason why garage door repair is also a common service that is provided in that area.

There is nothing wrong with being a do-it-yourselfer as long as you actually possess the necessary knowledge and skill to get the job done. Some people, however, overestimate their capabilities and the results are often disastrous. They are left with a garage door that has been installed or repaired poorly, and the results can sometimes be deadly.

Since 1983, more than 3,000 people have died due to garage door-related accidents. Last year, a 45-year-old man from Griggsville, Illinois was killed after accidentally being pinned under a garage door as it was closing. These accidents usually occur due to the fact that the doors are either improperly installed or maintained. Companies that repair garage doors Salt Lake City has specialize maintenance, repair, and installation.

When maintaining the doors, pay attention to the torsion springs. Torsion springs are responsible for raising or lowering the doors. These are very tightly wound springs, so if they break, don't touch the door of the garage Salt Lake City houses have. Companies that specialize in garage repair should be called immediately. Many people have reportedly died or have been injured due to the tightening or loosening the springs, so it is best to call a professional.

If you wish to learn more about repairing and maintaining garage doors Salt Lake City houses have, there are numerous repair companies to ask questions to. If you want to learn how to avoid garage door accidents, as well as other home fatalities, here is a website that would be useful videojug.com/interview/death-in-the-home#how-dangerous-is-my-automatic-garage-door. If you want to learn more about maintaining garage doors, you can find more information on the following websites: GarageIdeas.net, Garagehowto.com, and HouseLogic.com.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/home-improvement-articles/caution-fixing-a-garage-door-by-yourself-can-be-deadly.htm - Article Side

Kerita Kantz - About Author:
For more details, search a garage doors Salt Lake City and a garage doors Salt Lake City in Google for related information.

Article Keywords:
garage doors salt lake city, garage salt lake city

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!