Choosing the material for your solid wood furniture by John Seller

Article published on February 26th 2012 | Home Improvement

People often tend to choose the harder way around to improve the visuals of their homesâ€™ interior. They go for walls repainting, structural remodeling, wall art, Venetial plaster, murals, canvas, paintings, etc. to enhance the appeal of the space. But very few remember to focus on the content of rooms and their arrangement and alignment. So, if you are planning to refurbish the look of your bedroom, it is time to bring some quality furniture pieces. No other alteration can enhance the plastic beauty of your bedroom more than a solid wood furniture. Extremely durable and comely, a range of solid bedroom furniture can transform the whole aesthetic quotient of your rooms.

However, the choice of material is your own. While hardwood units are known for their longevity, strength and natural appeal, the other ones are a perennial favorite of the homeowners for their light-weight and usability, besides sharing the patent qualities of their harder counterparts. Surprisingly, there is a wide range of wood options for solid wood furniture. So, if you want to make a fail-safe investment, you need to take a look at the materials that the solid bedroom furniture pieces are available in.

Going by the popularity, the Pine wood tops the chart. Made of honey colored fine timber with a glossy lacquer or wax coating over, these solid wood furniture units flaunt an extremely gracious appearance. Quite light in weight, they are available in a diverse array of styles and designs. A pine wood dining table is particularly popular among home owners as the dining pieces are available in reworked condition. Even the pine solid bedroom furniture are available in styles ranging from the traditional to contemporary. Ideal for the middle class buyers, the pine is the right choice of wood for those who are looking for a great piece at the cheapest market price.

Oak wood is another popular selection in the solid wood furniture as it is almost impossible to go wrong with this timber. One of the hardest and most durable woods, the pieces carved out of them all bear a natural shine that reflects its superior quality. Oak furniture units are typically robust and always beautiful with rounded characteristics. Timeless classics, a piece of solid bedroom furniture made of Oak timber is always a worthy investment. Oak wood is again of different types, based upon their origin.

The American, European and Indian Oak woods differ in tone, color and longevity. The Mahogany wood is another old choice that is distinguishable from others in multiple ways. These units exude elegance, which is a class apart from the rest. With colors ranging from dark, rich red to reddish brown, the Mahogany solid wood furniture are oil finished that enables preservation of its deep coloring.
