Distinctive Styles Available in Faux Wood Blinds by Smith Williams

Article published on January 12th 2012 | Home Improvement

The various styles available in faux wood blinds are flat shades or hobbled shades, one length fabric shades that are also popularly known as the blackout range of shades due to a single whole length of fabric used, pleated shades, woven wood shades, cellular shades, and the honeycomb shades. The material used to create these faux wood blinds is anything from the eco friendly products to the stylish man made products and materials. Every style, pattern and design of the various faux wood blinds are popular and it is completely up to the individual to pick a style and design depending on the place where the roman shades are going to be installed and of course the total amount of money that has to be spent on the roman shades.

The distinctive style and designs available in roman shades enables for a great deal of choice and these days the popular choice for most people is the top down bottom up shades. The utter convenience that is availed after having one of these installed into the window have to be actually seen to be believed. With the name suggesting exactly what it provides in terms of functionality the entire range of top down bottom up shades irrespective of what material design and pattern is chosen provides the facility to open up the top part by entirely pulling it down whereas the bottom part is opened up by pulling it upwards. The mechanism is available in motorised version too and even with manual operation the entire top and bottom portions can be opened in such a way that the entire plank or planks fit into the frame.

For people who have excessive sunlight pouring in these top down bottom up shades are really good options as regulation of the amount of light to be allowed in helps a great deal. Even for people who do not get ample sunlight these top down bottom up shades provide perfect solutions as the entire area of the window can be opened during day time to allow sufficient light to enter thereby saving a lot on electricity bills. The various top down bottom up shades available in the market are easy to operate and also allows maintaining a neat and clean look along with a lot of elegance. The top down bottom up shades lend an air of sophistication along with the fact that these are quite cost effective when compared to other draping options for windows. The choice of fabric to be utilized for the shades can be opaque, semi opaque, sheer or semi sheer depending on the place, purpose and utility of where the shades are to be installed.

All over the world people are now opting for faux wood blinds and top down bottom up shades to give their homes and offices a touch of class and sophistication with a lot of money being saved in the long run.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/home-improvement-articles/distinctive-styles-available-in-faux-wood-blinds.htm - Article Side

Smith Williams - About Author:
Smith Williams is a freelance author who has the vast knowledge on a roman shades and a custom window blinds.

Article Keywords:

faux wood blinds, top down bottom up shades

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!