One of the more difficult things about owning a hot tub is handling the spa chemicals and cleaners. There are a lot of hot tub and spa chemicals on the market today. Choosing what's best for you can be confusing at times. Therefore, it's worth doing the research and making a purchase that will create a relaxing and soothing spa experience. Don't worry about being picky when trying to find the perfect master spa accessories that are just right for you and your partner. Here, you will discover how your hot tub accessories will take your spa experience to new levels.

Hot tub Covers

Hot tub cover covers are one of the many hot tub accessories hot tub owners should have. Spa covers are imperative to healthy hot tub water. Not only do they meet climate needs, they also protect the spa from the elements. So, which one to use? That depends on the space availability of where the cover will rest in its open position and what kind of insulation your climate requires. Warm conditions can use a thinner cover, whereas colder climates should use a much more thick and dense foam.

Hot Tub and Spa Filters

One essential part of hot tubs is the hot tub filters. They remove water impurities and clean out dirt, grime, oil, hair, and other debris. There is a lot to learn about hot tub filters if you want to maintain the peak effectiveness of your hot tub. It is imperative that you throw away and replace your hot tub filter every 12 months, sometimes more often if you are using specialized spa filters. If your hot tub filters are more than two years old, you should throw away immediately. This is because over time, the paper that makes up the spa filter can break down, causing holes to appear and allow debris to pass through the filter.

Aromatherapy

Do you need a fragrance for your spa? Aromatherapy is the latest trend in hot tub accessories. Whether it is instilling romance or a soothing environment, the emotional benefits of spa fragrance are profound. Once you start using hot tub aromatherapy products, you will be amazed at the differences in your experience. However, the wrong crystals or liquid fragrances can cause chemical imbalances or leave a scum line, or cause excessive foaming. Remember to choose a fragrance product that is especially formulated for hot tub or spa use and be sure to rinse your filter afterwards.

Master spa accessories can add to your hot tub experience but make sure you are using the right ones!
