Plumbing jobs can vary. They can be anything from fixing a small leak to remodeling to full under slab leak detection and repair. Plumbers in Houston need to be ready to address any situation or emergency, and many plumbing contractors can help with other plumbing situations as well, including remodeling and new fixture installations.

Most plumbing services in Houston typically handle little more than clogged pipes and small leaks as a part of their routine daily calls for customers. More serious leaks need to be addressed quickly by a plumbing contractor to minimize the damage the water can cause. Damage to water lines is typically caused by four main reasons: grease or sludge in the pipes, grit and other residue buildup from hard water, infiltration of pipes by roots, and uneven contraction caused by the freezing of the ground and expansion caused by the heating of the ground. In addition, leaks near electrical lines or other electrical equipment can cause even more damage and lead to a potentially hazardous situation.

Under slab leaks are another frequent problem plumbers in Houston are frequently faced with. Leaks under a foundation slab can be a homeownerâ€™s worst nightmare because the damage can be hidden for quite a long time before it is discovered. Some plumbing services in Houston and plumbing contractors have specialized equipment, such as video inspection technology, that can be used to pinpoint the leak. Plumbers in Houston can then recommend a course of action afterward, usually breaking through the slab or tunneling under the slab. More experienced plumbers in Houston will push for tunneling since it preserves the foundationâ€™s integrity while fixing the leak.

Plumbing services in Houston can also include new plumbing fixture installation. Planning for a new plumbing fixture takes time and knowledge, since there are many different fixtures that can do a particular job. The plumbing fixtures are essential features of any plumbing assembly, and many plumbers in Houston offer their services as a plumbing consultant for many fixtures. Plumbing services in Houston can help choose the best fixture based on a customersâ€™ wants and needs, including toilets, sinks, bathtubs, and showers. Commercial plumbers can help businesses choose utility washing sinks, urinals, and many other fixtures unique to businesses as well. Many plumbing services in Houston can also help with installation once the fixtures are purchased, to ensure that each fixture fits in its space and is installed properly.
