When would you need to consider humidifier hire?

A humidifier is a household appliance used to increase the moisture in the air of a single room or in the entire house. There are several types of humidifiers available for humidifier hire. You can hire point-of-use humidifiers which are commonly used to humidify a single room or whole-house or furnace humidifiers which connect to a home's HVAC system to provide humidity to the entire house. Humidifier hire works by the use of an internal wick which acts as a filter absorbing water from the reservoir and then providing a larger surface area for it to evaporate from. There is a fan that is adjacent to the wick and blows air onto the wick to aid in the evaporation of the water. The evaporation from the wick depends on relative humidity. If a room has low humidity, it will have a higher evaporation rate compared to a room with high humidity. Therefore the best type of humidifier hire is one that is self-regulating.

How does humidifier hire improve the quality of air in your home?

Humidifier hire increases the quality of air in your room because when humidity of the room increases, the water vapour output naturally decreases. The indoor air quality of a room is greatly influenced by the room's temperature and its relative humidity of the air. The optimum humidity in a room is somewhere between 45 to 55%. This is considered ideal as it is healthiest and the most pleasant. You do not want a room feeling too humid or damp and likewise if air is too dry, that can cause discomfort as well. In the winter, central heating and cold air combine forces to reduce indoor humidity levels to below 25% making the rooms you live in incredibly dry. This is where humidifier hire comes in especially handy during the winter months.
