Installation of Granite Worktops: an Introduction by Julia Roger

Article published on March 6th 2012 | Home Improvement

Granite worktops are very hygienic as it takes very little effort to keep them shining, dust-proof and stain-proof. Granite worktops are usually seen in the kitchen but in other rooms, they function as vanity tops. Granite is classified as a semi-precious stone worktop. Edge profile variation adds to its beauty. Most fittings of granite are done horizontally. The fittings embedded in granite worktops are sinks, drainer metallic holed structure, flush fitted hops, etc. The edges are given shape according to the dÃ©cor of the room. The stone is fabricated through machinery. Granite is available in different colors with shades of black blue and red pleasing to visualization. Granite creates ambience and elegance in the room from kitchen to bathrooms.

Once the raw granite reaches the quarry it is cut to size and finished according to the placed order or reaches to granite shop for sale. The cost of the stone is competitive. The height of the granite worktop varies with the height of the owner and work purpose of the tabletop. The bending and standing posture for work determines the dimensions of the tabletop. Discount is offered to the buyer by quarry owners and shop owners.

Caesarstone involve varying natural and manmade materials in its construction. The granite is given appearance through cutting and finishing machines at the fabricatorâ€™s workshop. The end product is enriched with functionality, beauty, smoothness to touch, durability, and affordable price. The product thus prepared is mounted on wooden or metal base with overhang given to the edge all around. In kitchen or other places where there are chances of backsplash of liquid the backdrop is distanced accordingly. Mostly a workman working in this area is called to fit the granite piece to the stall but do it yourself units are also available where the customer after purchase can assemble the parts independently as freestanding islands in the room.
