On the flight deck of an aircraft carrier, it's not a matter of "if" an accident is going to happen, it's a matter of "when". Therefore, countless hours go into training for emergency situations.

The same holds true for your home and bad weather. Chances are your property will someday be affected by a hurricane, tornado, freak snow storm, or violent storm that produces flying debris, downed trees, or large falling tree limbs. Will you be ready when that emergency hits?

A scenario that happens frequently in southeastern Virginia goes like this -- a fallen tree damages a home's roof, fencing and several windows. The homeowner searches frantically for a roofing company, a tree removal company, a fencing company or handyman, and a window company. Much time and energy is put into finding these folks, and no research is conducted amidst the mayhem. Conducting no research is like putting gas on an unwanted fire. Things can go from bad to worse real fast when working under unfamiliar emergency conditions.

The good news is that there are companies that handle all these types of emergencies. For example, All-Area Roofing and Restoration in Hampton Roads, Virginia, is designed to handle the above scenario with one phone call to them. Chances are every region in Virginia has several companies with the business model, resources and expertise all under one roof to perform roof, window, fencing and siding repairs, as well as tree removal.

Smart homeowners find their go-to company before an emergency arises, talks with them, and has the companies emergency phone number at their fingertips should the unfortunate happen to their property.

Following are a few questions to ask the company that you will be partnering with to get your home repaired in an emergency:

Do you do emergency repairs -- around the clock?

You are looking for a company that is dedicated to helping victims of storms by providing emergency roof repairs and tree removal. Make sure they have a policy of being available 24 hours a day, seven days a week. The ones that do understand that emergencies do not obey the 9 to 5 clock. Find out what their normal response time is to emergencies and let them know you are going to hold them to that. A quick response ensures damage is kept to a minimum. Roof, window or siding repairs need to be done quickly to prevent water damage and possible mold growth.

What services do you perform?

You are looking for a multi-talented company that can provide quality emergency repairs to your roof, siding, fence (wood or chain link), and windows, as well as perform tree removal. One company, one bill, one point of contact.

Are you a Class A Contractor?

Your state should have an agency like the Department of Professional and Occupational Regulation that can verify a roofing companyâ€™s contractor status, as well as a Complaint History if one exists.

Are you insured? If so by who?

You do not want to do business with a fly-by-night roofing company that will leave you high and dry if something goes wrong. Make sure they are insured by a reputable insurance company. Also ask if the company has been issued a Performance Bond by the insurer. For example, All Area Roofing & Restoration has a $500,000 Performance Bond, which guarantees the company's work will be completed per the contract. A Performance Bond is issued when a company has a proven track record for high-quality work, management, and safety.

What is your experience level?

Look for experienced roofers, window repairman, and tree removers. These types of jobs have dire consequences when done incorrectly. The more experience the better. For example, All Area Roofing and Restoration is owned by third-generation roofer Frank Sarpino. His company has decades of solid training and industry know-how. When it comes to a roofing, siding, fencing or window problem, theyâ€™ve seen it all and know how to handle it.

Are you a member of the Better Business Bureau?

If the roofing contractor is a member of the BBB, go online and check the BBB's rating of the company, and also to learn if they have any legal complaints against them.

Does your work come with a warranty?

You should get at least a 5-year warranty on the repaired area, unless otherwise specified on your contract. Ask if you will receive this warranty in a written, legal document.

What is your price?

You do not want a company that can repair the roof of your house for $120. This could cost you more money in the long run due to low quality work. A good rule of thumb is to get some quotes and start researching the middle prices. The goal is to find a company that can fix your emergency quickly, properly and affordably.

Your home is one of your most important investments. Do you know who you're calling if the next large storm severely damages your home?
