Planning Summer Holiday by Jessicarodgers

Article published on June 12th 2012 | Home Improvement

Summer is here and the holidays are starting soon. Now it is definitely the time to start thinking about holiday plans. Summer holiday shouldnâ€™t be planned too meticulously but you should incorporate all the things you have in mind, such as visits to relativesâ€™ places and possible longer trips like trips abroad. There is an immense amount of holiday options out there so you just have to see which ones suit you and your family.

For a couple without children it is often easier to choose the vacation style. It is a lot easier to travel abroad, especially to exotic places fi you donâ€™t have children with you so if you have any adventurer in you, you should definitely head to Africa and try out a safari ride or go to the beaches of Bali. Also, intense city holidays with a lot of shopping are better to execute without kids.

When there are children in a family, you really have to think about the needs and the restrictions that the situation poses. Travelling abroad is also suitable for children but you should choose a place where it is safe and you donâ€™t need to get vaccinations. Europe and the States are places that are mostly pretty suitable for families, especially countryside holidays. There are great options to spend a week on a farm, which also teaches children about farm animals and farm life in general.

One of my favorite ways to spend at least some of the summer holiday is to go to our summer cottage by a lake. Our summer cottage is in the central Finland and surrounded by pure nature. There we swim, play badminton, grill by the bonfire and enjoy random rainy days by the fire inside. Although for some people a rainy day might be a mood killer, for us it is almost as fun as a sunny summer day, especially nowadays after we got a fireplace installed. It was only last year that we contacted UunisepÃ¤t, a Finnish fireplace company, and ordered a fireplace to our summer cottage. In no time, a beautiful fireplace from UunisepÃ¤t was installed. Now every rainy day we spend by that fireplace sipping on hot chocolate with marshmallows and playing board games with our whole family.

Make sure you find the right holiday options to suit your family. Our kids and us parents love our summer cottage even on a rainy day thanks to our UunisepÃ¤t fireplace, but wes also like travelling abroad. Every holiday should be a bit different so give it some thought.
