The great Finnish summer is here by Patricksorin86

Article published on June 20th 2012 | Home Improvement

One thing that we Finnish people are especially proud of is our summer. The summer in Finland is something that is hard to describe, one just has to experience it. The summer has so many different elements that make it so special but one thing over them all is that it feels like one day but lasts for few months. In Finland you wonâ€™t run out of sunlight even if you wanted so. The day is so long and in the midsummer it basically doesnâ€™t end at all.

Midsummer is one of the typical Finnish summer traditions when everyone goes to their summer cottages and enjoys the endless day. If you happen to be in the city during the midsummer in Finland, you will quite soon realize that you should be somewhere else. This somewhere else is somewhere with lake, water and a summerhouse nearby.

Finland is famous of having many summerhouses. But what makes a great summerhouse then? That is a good question. Most of the summerhouses are designed to survive the winter as well. For this reason most of them have fireplaces, saunas and other elements that are very traditional to the Finnish culture.

When people build their summerhouses, usually they have a lot to say about the design, interior and the place they are building it in. One of the first things people start to look for is a great fireplace that would really suit their summerhouse. You can get great fireplaces, for example from UunisepÃ¤t. UunisepÃ¤t is the leading fireplace producer in Finland and whatâ€™s more UunisepÃ¤t will install the fireplace for you once you find the perfect one.

So in short, the great Finnish summer is finally here and it has quite many of the same elements year after year: summerhouse, midsummer, sun, water and a nice fireplace to grill your sausages on. What else could you possibly ask for? We have such a long winter that Finland really needs its beautiful summer to recover. Enjoy the summer while it lasts and take the most out of it.
