Tips for Replacement of a Hot Tub Spa Cover by Ian Jemson

Article published on January 3rd 2012 | Home Improvement

So you have owned a hot tub for few years now and you are noticing that the condition of the spa cover is worsening. Its color has been faded and maybe it is ripped and torn at certain places. It is often found that spa covers don't last as long as a hot tub and often need replacement after 4 to 5 years. This fact is an indication of how much the spa cover goes through by burning in the hot sun and withstanding the chilling winter. They even bear your children jumping on it and the wind throwing all kind of dust and debris on it. In fact it is probably because of the spa cover that your hot tub is still in working condition.

Once you realize that it is the time to replace your spa cover, check around and find out the best way to do so. You can walk to any neighboring store and purchase any spa cover you like or you can order it online and it is delivered right at your door step. The later is what most people prefer to do as it gives them options to check different styles, compare prices and prevents the hassle of carrying it from shop to home.

Mentioned below are few points that you should keep in mind while replacing your spa cover:

• Correct size of spa cover is very important to make sure that your hot tub spa is covered correctly. You can measure it yourself or check manufacturers manual if you still have it. You can also find few online stores that explain the procedure of how to measure the size of the spa cover.

• The material used in making of spa cover should be something that can withstand climate in your area. Spa cover for an ice covered area is made differently from a spa cover that can withstand scorching sun. Also, make sure that you purchase the best quality of spa cover as it will last longer and will not require a replacement after just 2 years.

• Spa cover is not a cheap item. Therefore, make sure that you check the warranty so that you have a backup and maintenance for some time after the purchase is over.

• If you have kids or pets in home that like to stand on the spa cover instead of your repeated warnings, take care to purchase covers that are durable and can withstand the weight of few grown men.

While you take care of one of the above points, you should also ensure that any other aspect is not being compromised in order to ensure a safe and reliable purchase of your spa covers.
