Why Bamboo Blinds Might be the Perfect Choice by Jack

Article published on May 28th 2012 | Home Improvement

Should you find yourself in need of some new blinds for the windows of your home, one particular style of blinds that has been growing in popularity a lot recently is bamboo blinds. Not only are they beautiful to look at and more than capable of accentuating just about any room, or garden view, they also possess a number of unique advantages that go a long way towards explaining their growing popularity. I will now outline a few reasons why bamboo blinds might just be the perfect choice for your windows.

Naturally Stylish

Probably the most common reason that people choose bamboo blinds for their windows are just how bright and natural they look. The nature of bamboo allows blinds made from the wood to incorporate very thin slats, therefore allowing maximum amounts of light into the room when slid open. And just like any other type of wood, bamboo blinds are both incredibly natural looking and highly versatile in terms of the colours and styles that they blend well with.

A Wide Range of Shades

Although bamboo blinds are indeed becoming a much more prominent member of modern households, you are still unlikely to end up with the exact same style as your neighbour. The reason for this is that bamboo blinds naturally come in a very wide range of different shades. One downside of this however is that bamboo blind manufacturers frequently have little control over the exact shade that you receive and it is pretty common to receive a slightly different shade than that which you ordered.

Surprisingly Cheap

Surprisingly enough, given the aesthetical charms of bamboo blinds, they are actually considerably cheaper than most other types of blinds. Therefore, although those looking at them are unlikely to have a clue, bamboo blinds are the ideal choice for those looking to add a sparkle to their windows without spending too much.

Durable

Despite their low cost, a high quality set of bamboo blinds can prove a solid investment as they are likely to last you many years. Bamboo is naturally a very durable type of wood and that is one of the reasons that the wood was so popular in the construction of huts many years ago. Therefore unlike many things that you can purchase to make your house look more stylish, bamboo blinds are designed to stand the test of time.

Environmentally Friendly

Finally, should you be a fan of the old environment, bamboo blinds are an excellent choice. Not only are no chemicals used in their production, unlike many other types of blinds, but bamboo blinds are actually more environmentally friendly than even other types of wooden blinds. The reason for this is that bamboo trees grow at significantly faster rates than most other types of trees. Bamboo trees can therefore be replaced a lot faster after they've been cut down. The same can, of course, not be said for trees that take twenty years to mature.
