Article Side

Electronic Gate to Keep Your Driveway Secure by Mark D

Article published on December 19th 2011 | Home Security

Securing your driveway is the best way to protect your home from possible disturbances and intrusions from criminals who are masked as if they come from a home delivery service. Investing on wireless driveway alarm will be a best move to perfectly handle the protection job outside your home. There are different styles of security devices like the one offered by ADT Home Security that will offer you a unique and innovative way to keep a watch on what is going on around your property.

It may be a 100-foot small driveway or larger driveways that are more than 2 miles, you've got a wide variety of wireless or handheld models in different detection ranges. You will get a warning tone or a prerecorded message when there is an intrusion and there are more advanced models on the other hand, which will help you communicate to the visitors using an intercom system at the end of your driveway.

All types of wireless driveway alarms feature a receiver and a transmitter. Any presence in your driveway is detected by the transmitter, normally through infrared equipment, which alerts you through the receiver. Most models will allow you to speak through the receiver, transmitting your voice through the transmitter. If a solicitor or burglar is trying to visit your home, your voice is normally all it takes to stop them moving forward. To make it simple, these devices act more like a strong electronic gate to protect your home from all sorts of unwanted disturbances.

Even though the technical name is wireless driveway alarm, there are several uses for this technology. You can install the equipment in your yard, out of plain view, or even use the system as an intercom to talk to anyone who pulls up at your gate. You can also install the system on your roof, or just use it strategically around your property. There are several uses for wireless systems, although the intention is to alert you when there is any type of human presence or movement on your property. When you set up your wireless driveway system, you should always place it somewhere, where it is not easy to see. You do not want someone who visits your property to have plain view of your equipment, as it can make it easy for someone to destroy it or deactivate it. You want to make sure that you are aware about all visitors, yet they are not aware that you are using any type of alarms.

Depending on how much money you have to spend, the systems that you can choose from will vary. There are simple wireless driveway alarms out there, yet there are also systems that can do just about anything you want. If you live in a suburban area, you may want to go with a standard wireless alarm. Standard alarms are best for this type of neighborhood, as they are easy to install and will immediately alert you whenever there is presence on your property. Another great thing about these types of systems is the fact that you can act immediately without having to physically be in touch with the receiver.

All in all, wireless driveway alarms are a great security measure for anyone who owns a home and wants to protect themselves from unwanted visitors. You can get a slew of features as well, depending on the type of alarm that you select. You can install most alarms yourself, although the more advanced models will require professional installation. The self installation types will come with instructions as well, so you will not encounter any problems. Even if you have never used them before, wireless driveway alarms are a great investment that will alert you anytime someone decides to break into your property.

Article Source:

http://www.articleside.com/home-security-articles/electronic-gate-to-keep-your-driveway-secure.htm - Article Side

Mark D - About Author:
Being a freelancer I like writing and blogging about interesting topics sparked from an idea or experience. To conclude with, installing a wireless driveway alarm is a proven method to block unwanted intrusions on your property. If you don't have one yet, consider comparing the security services available like a ADT Home Security to choose the best that fits your need and budget.

Article Keywords:
wireless security,protect driveway,adt home security

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!