Article published on June 12th 2012 | Interior Design

Kids are by nature very moody and choosy about everything related to them. They have their own whims and fancies that fascinate them and dictate their world! Even when it comes to the dÃ©cor of their room, kids like everything as per their taste and fancies. So decorating a kidâ€™s room can be a task that is both challenging and interesting. It is challenging because it is definitely tough to match up and understand the fantastic world of the children. It can be interesting because decorating a childâ€™s bedroom according to the childâ€™s preferences and ideas would open a window for you to pe into the childâ€™s world that you otherwise may not be able to access.

As one sets out to decorate a childâ€™s room, one has to understand the nature and personality of the child. Every child has a cartoon character or a supernatural creature or may be a toy that continues to enchant him or her day after day. So, one can easily pick a theme pertaining to a supernatural creature or a toy or a cartoon characterâ€¦whatever the child is fascinated with to decorate the whole room!

The theme can be translated and explicated through the use of complementing wall paints, interesting and bright bed-sheets, matching curtains of different exciting patterns with the childâ€™s favourite characters printed on them! The room can be accessorized with some miniatures of the characters or the toys that the child prefers to play with.

Moreover, it also has to be kept in mind that the furnishing we use in the childâ€™s room is strong and has longevity. The most basic things that a childâ€™s room should have include a table and many shelves and platforms to be used for various purposes including studying, storing and organizing.

Installing counter tops in the childâ€™s room instead of having tables is a better idea as counter tops are easy to maintain. Laminate countertops have a much longer life and are low-maintenance which means that even the kids can also clean the counter tops installed in his/her room.

One should always consult the child; know what he/she wants/prefers in his/her room. Understand the childâ€™s personality, temperament, taste and nature. Then, do some research and know about all the options for laminate countertops available in the market. Weigh pros and cons of using laminate countertops as opposed to the traditional counter tops. One could use various options for countertop laminate like compact grade laminate, solid surface laminate etc. to make an informed choice and then build a room that your child dreams of and is not a pain for you to maintain and take care of!
