The latest trends in interior decoration are inclined towards personal preferences crafting a unique interior design for every house. With the conventional ideas taking the back seat, the interior designers are following individual specific interior decoration ideas to impart a personal touch to your home. The interior decoration themes are also becoming more natural and comfort oriented instead of presenting just an ornate picture.

The hot interior decoration trends hints towards the â€œless is moreâ€• principle. Regardless of the space and color schemes, the heavy ornate decorations and furniture are losing foot to clean lines and tranquil settings. You will find the homes reflecting the spirit of an oasis in the fast and hectic lifestyle instead of being mere show pieces. Tastefully selected modest decoration and less furniture are surfacing as the most preferred options creating a less cluttered and warm look.

2012 would witness a relaxed color scheme employing soft and cool shades of green, blue and tan. These colors have an exclusive quality of delivering an ethereal feeling to the room making you feel stress free and calm. Trendy but cool tones of lavender, mossy green and cinnamon can also be used to deliver a serene effect. For people with a passion for vibrant colors the best option would be strategic touches of bright colors balanced with neutral and subtle home dÃ©cor.

Interestingly, though the space constraints are increasing people are getting more generous toward their personal spaces like kitchen and bathroom. This year the interior designers would be delivering equal attention to these otherwise neglected spaces upgrading them in functionality as well as appearance. Also there could be plenty of experiments with the kitchen counter top with the materials like glass, aluminum and poured concrete.

Interior designers in India are currently hugely inspirited with the â€œego greenâ€• theme. Besides encouraging the use of soothing tones of green on walls you can also use interesting combinations in various artifacts and accessories. The green touches are expected in the selection of environmental friendly gadgets like the water saving dish washers, washing machines, less power using equipments etc. Interior decoration elements would also retain the health factor by employing natural products. People have lately realized that the chemically treated products though very alluring, could lead to health hazards in the long run. A chemically treated carpet would release chemicals for years, corrupting your house hold for long. Also with the added threat of environment pollution bringing health hazards, interior decorators are suggesting to employ natural fabric to adorn your place. Natural and eco friendly materials like hemp, bamboo and wicker are also garnering great acceptance in interior designs.

Succinctly putting this year would witness an earth friendly interior decoration. People are waking up to the urgency of environmental needs and this would be reflected in the choices of the interior designers. With less furniture and lively colors you can look ahead to airy and bright spaces which would also be quite health friendly.
