There is no denying that Google SEO does result into great outcomes for website owners. However, one needs to pay attention to some crucial factors before selecting one. For instance, the age of domain and URL is very important. The age is the sole criteria that goes a long way in building your websiteâ€™s trust. Existence of your website for few years is testimony to the fact that your online business is an established one.

Domain hosting is another important criterion of google seo. Generally, it is the country where the website is based that determines your search engine rankings. Therefore, appointing a hosting company of immense reputation and goodwill is the best move. Similarly, keeping the URL structure clean will ensure no random string of characters is found at the end of URLs.
