Gain an Edge with a Professional Resume by Dena Mccarthy

Article published on February 2nd 2012 | Internet

In tough economic times, when unemployment is high and competition for available jobs is just as high, resumes make a huge difference in who may get those jobs. It is no secret that a poorly written resume can reflect badly on the person who submitted it. Likewise, well-crafted professional resumes often give the job candidate an edge.

One of the main issues associated with resume writing is that many people simply do not know how to draft a well-written resume. The information presented may be accurate, but the format or the text body may be less than professional. For this reason, many job candidates prefer to work with skilled, experienced resume writers such as those found at Resumes That Work.

A professional resume is designed to do one thing and that is to get the candidate in for an interview. A resume, by itself, will rarely result in the person being hired. The power of a professional resume occurs when it piques the interest of the reader and causes that reader to want to learn more about the candidate. In other words, it leads to a face-to-face interview. The resume writers at Resumes That Work are skilled at creating resumes that grab the reader's attention and leads them to the interview request decision.

In order for a resume to work to its full potential, it has to be personalized. A simple cookie-cutter resume will rarely grab anyone's attention. The resume writers at Resumes That Work, listen to their clients and format professional resumes that showcase the client's achievements and skills sets. They are experienced in crafting resumes for all sectors of industry, including government employers. The company offers face-to-face, phone and online access to their team of experts. Their services include Professional Resume Writing, Addressing Selection Criteria, Key Selection Criteria, professionally written Cover Letters, Interview tips and Interview questions.

The company also offers a free critique Resume Services for existing resumes. This is a great way to learn what areas of the resume are strong and which areas are weak. Resumes That Work is a proud member of the Association of Online Resume and Career Professionals. They also offer an outstanding guarantee policy which can be viewed at their website. And unlike some other professional resume writing companies that use software to punch out their work product, all work from this company is done by hand, giving clients that personal touch which is so important in getting that interview.

If you are looking to get an interview with a new employer, consider working with Resumes That Work first. Their affordable resume service can help you present yourself in the best possible light and give the reader something to grab onto as he or she decides if they want to meet with you in person. In today's tough job market, job candidates need all the help they can get. Why not take advantage of this service now and get the edge you need in this competitive marketplace? You can learn much more by visiting their website.
