In the realm of digital data duplication on optical media, services like CD replication and DVD duplication are very common. However, under typical circumstances, the requirement hardly stops at making multiple copies of your data on fresh blank media. There are other allied services that customer typically seek beside basic CD replication and DVD duplication. Of these, the most important one is printing and packaging the recorded media.

There are many reputed companies offering similar services in UK today. All you have to do is approach any one of them with your specific requirements to find the best solutions. Most of these companies have all the necessary equipment and expertise in providing you with turnkey assistance with all your CD replication and DVD duplication requirements.

Among the various printing and packaging solutions provided by them are:

Â· Screen printed CDs and DVDs

This method of printing blank media is a good choice for artwork that uses spot colors. The printed media can be supplied either blank so that the customer can record on them later on, or can contain data. Screen printing is an excellent option for moderate to high quantities and can be accomplished in a short time.

Â· Thermal Transfer Printing

This process is ideal for just about any quantity and produces excellent quality photographic quality prints with a robust weatherproofed finish. Typical results are as good as those produced by lithographic printing.

Â· High Resolution Inkjet Printing

High resolution prints of up to 2880dpi are possible with the help of highly capable inkjet printers. It can produce a vibrant color reproduction and a photographic quality that is truly remarkable. Inkjet printing is a highly cost-effective as well as high-quality option for smaller runs. In some cases, the printed discs are finished with a lacquer coating to create a durable, smudge-free surface with a glossy finish.

Â· Digitally Printed Surface Labels

Digital printed self adhesive surface labels can also be supplied in some cases when the customer demand is high and the time is short. Although the results may not be as striking as other methods, digital printing can be a real lifesaver in cases when a quick solution is sought.
