Facebook Timeline â€“ Make the Perfect Online Scrapbook By Gaenor Octavian

Article published on December 11th 2011 | Internet Business

You probably already spend quite a bit of time on Facebook, but did you know that you could customize it further with the help of a newly launched feature? It is called Facebook Timeline and it provides you the best way to express your personality. You can create your own online scrapbook almost effortlessly thanks to this new feature of Facebook that helps you manage your photos and information about you better. In fact, it is what your Facebook profile will be from now on.

Facebook Timeline works by arranging all the content you have already shared on this site. It is in reverse chronological order so that all the latest and most interesting photographs and stories about yourself are right at the beginning. You will love this feature because it helps you draw the attention of all your friends to important events in your life.

Facebook Timeline is really flexible and easy to use. You can get really creative with regards to the information and photographs you wish to feature on it. If you feel that a little pruning is in order then you will easily be able to do it. In fact, you can add photos wherever necessary in order to tell the story of your life better. In addition, youâ€™ll be able to add interesting captions to each of these photos in order to make them more attention-grabbing. More importantly, youâ€™ll also be able to go back and remove photos that you might have posted earlier on but certainly donâ€™t want to feature on your profile page!

You will like the layout of your Facebook profile thanks to this feature. There will be a large photo called a cover photo right on top, with an inset of the profile photo.Facebook covers will be the first thing people will see when they visit your timeline. It appears as two columns side by side. There will be a larger column on which readers can view the content next to a smaller one to the right. The smaller column helps to navigate the information very easily and quickly. Once you start using this feature, youâ€™ll have limited time before it gets published. You can publish it straight away or wait until you have finished doing it completely. Facebook only gives you seven days in order to get it in order before it publishes it, but most people consider this to be sufficient.

Facebook respects your need for privacy. If you had originally posted your photos with certain privacy settings then Facebook Timeline will retain them. Therefore, only the people you had originally shared specific posts with will be able to see these photos on your timeline. Of course, you can always change your privacy settings again.

Facebook changes its settings from time to time, and this too might happen with this new feature. All the same, Facebook Timeline is definitely going to be used by all people who use this site because it helps them to express themselves perfectly. After all, doesnâ€™t everyone love to tell their lifeâ€™s stor to friends, co-workers or even perfect strangers?
