Become Proud Owners of Argyle and Canary Diamond by Ray Ban

Article published on June 5th 2012 | Jewelry

Anybody would love to have a canary diamond but that is the only thing that remains common. Possessing one of these pieces is the most difficult thing because one has to be very rich to have it. The extreme rarity of these diamonds which are originally yellow in color has made them to be only a few in the world. The rarity again makes it more fragile to be copied or faked. Tinge of yellowish in these pieces of stones is enough to reflect their brilliance which can be felt just by a sight of it. The canary diamond is so exquisitely formed that the light passes through it in the best possible manner, which is the specialty of these stones.

But those who love other colored diamonds can have their piece from the argyle diamonds because in Australia, the largest mining of these precious stones is done from the Argyle Mines which were formed in the volcanic region.

The range of products from these mines has attracted lots of attention because a variety of such stones can be found in these mines. So, nowadays, most of the stores are also selling a set of diamonds with the name of Argyle attached to it because these have been mined in this particular place. The pink diamond is the best from these regions which have a reddish tinge to it and gives a great show when worn. Even though the brown and blue hued stones are available, the pink one steals the show among the argyle diamonds.

These stones have a special feature associated with them because most of the stones, whatever is their color, show a bluish coloration to it under the ultraviolet lights. Many colored stones can be found in these mines and therefore they are being sought after. Their popularity is such that people go into the jewellery diamond shops and ask for these particular diamonds and are satisfied with many of their color choices. The best form of pinkish red diamond is although the choicest form of most of these collections.

Nowadays, people who collect diamond cannot have the canary diamond but they can gladly choose one from the vast collections of the argyle diamonds because they will get the shape and the color of the diamond they are seeking. At a time when the popularity of these precious stones is increasing, the mines in different parts of the world are busy excavating them and are also being cut and shaped by the diamond cutters.

Various things are being done with these pieces because people like diamonds even for the smallest occasion and for the larger ones, these are the must-have precious stones. People from all over the world have fancied these precious stones and argyle diamonds have also rose up to the occasion to supply them the best forms in different colors except for the yellow ones.
