Article Side

Cremation Jewelry â€“ Not Just for Ashes By Rajesh

Article published on January 23rd 2012 | Jewelry

The loss of those closest to us, whether a family member, close friend or pet, affects us in different ways but an overwhelming sense of grief and sadness are common physical and emotional symptoms. Unique accessories called cremation jewelry can repair some of the grief and allow family and friends to begin to move forward. Ideal for every situation, these keepsakes will hold a tribute of personal choosing and create a resting place for a memory.

Cremation jewelry explained

The idea behind cremation jewelry lies in the interior of a personally selected jewelry accessory. Pendants, rings, bracelets and others in a wide assortment of themes and styles have a small interior compartment that will hold a tribute in honor of the deceased. The compartment is protected by the threaded bail or by a discreetly placed threaded screw and a drop of adhesive before tightening secures the remembrance inside the cremation jewelry. The jewelry can then be worn as any normal accessory and the design of the keepsake gives nothing away about what the interior holds.

Different types of personal tributes

Cremation jewelry is ideal for every situation surrounding the loss of loved ones. Not just for cremated remains, the interior will hold virtually any tribute of personal choice. A small amount of ground from where a loved one was buried can be added to the interior. Maybe a few strands of hair or some fur from a pet works best given the situation. A tiny scroll for a cylinder, dried and crushed flowers from a saved wedding bouquet, a pinch of ashes from a love letter or favorite picture â€“ the options are endless!

The interior of cremation jewelry holds a personal tribute such as:

Â· Ground from the site of burial

Â· Dried and crushed flowers

Â· A few strands of hair or fur from a pet

Bringing comfort to an aching heart and easing the emotional strain of grief is essential to begin to move forward after suffering loss. Cremation jewelry is a jewelry accessory that has a small interior to hold a personal tribute in honor of the deceased. Ideal for men and women, the keepsakes will hold anything from cremated ashes to ground from a special place to a few strands of hair. Personal and discreet, the design protects the remembrance and keeps the secret of what is inside and lets family and friends honor those no longer with them in an intimate and private manner.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/jewelry-articles/cremation-jewelry-not-just-for-ashes.htm - Article Side

Rajesh - About Author:

Click here to learn more about cremation jewelry and unique keepsakes to hold a tribute to a loved one. Visit www.evrmemories.com to find articles and tips on helping those that are grieving and selecting a tribute for a keepsake.

Article Keywords:
designer cremation jewelry, Cremation Jewelry, Custom Cremation urns, Pet Cremation Urns

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!