Pearl bracelets make a great accessory for completing any look whether it be sophisticated or casual. They add just a touch of style and class, without over- powering the wearer. Freshwater pearls are the most common type of pearl due to that fact that there can be up to twenty-five pearls in an oyster, each time it is harvested. Due to the fact that they are so common, Freshwater pearls are very affordable. However, this does not take away from the elegance and beauty of the pearl jewelry . Other types of pearls, including Akoya pearls make perfect pearl necklaces. These pearls are perfectly round, due to the way they are nucleated, using a ceramic or glass bead.

Their flawless shape allows jewelers to create munificent necklaces and bracelets with these pearls. Tahitian and South Sea pearls also create amazing looks in pearl accessories. The colors of these pearls are unique and create one of a kind pieces, that immediately draw the eyes attention. Try a gold or silver bangle bracelet with a single Tahitian or South Sea pearl floating on it. Wear one, or stack several on top of each other to create a modern look. At Aloha Pearls, we carry several freshwater pearl bracelet designs.

Choose a strand of solid white pearls, which will wrap beautifully around your wrist as you hold your grooms hand. Or for a contemporary look, choose a bracelet of pearls paired with spacers made of precious metals and crystals to give some sheen to your wedding dress, without taking to much away from it. No matter what type of pearl you choose, pearl bracelets and necklaces will add that perfect touch to every ensemble. Shop at www.alohapearls.com to find the perfect look for you. The luster held within each pearl you wear will ensure that it gets noticed and will help you feel beautiful each time you wear it.
