As higher education becomes more globalised, students from all over the world are beginning to see the possibilities of studying in another country. This is a new development in recent years, as previously it has been students from the East who have travelled to Western countries to study. The idea of a Western student deciding to choose Chinese Language Programs was unheard of. However, this is all changing as educational standards in China rapidly improve, and the importance of Chinese language increases.

This means that every year more and more students from the UK, USA and Europe are choosing to take Chinese Language Programs. Whether this is a short-term language course, an undergraduate degree or even a postgraduate qualification, there are plenty of reasons why these program are advantageous.

Firstly, choosing Chinese Language Programs gives you the opportunity to learn one of the most important languages in the world. Mandarin is spoken by well over 1 billion people, and with China's rapid economic growth the importance of Chinese as a global language for business and commerce is clear for all to see. Recently China has become the world 2nd largest economy after the USA, however is expect to take the number one spot within the next 10-15 years. Whilst you could study Chinese in any country, choosing Chinese Language Programs based in China allows you to learn Chinese much more effectively and quickly. The benefits of this are huge, as it not only gives one an opportunity to surround self with native speakers, it also promotes culture tolerance and understanding. It allows the participant to experience first-hand Chinese customs and traditions, thus giving you further insight to the ways China conducts business. This experience and understand could prove invaluable.

You may be worried that Chinese Language Programs cannot possibly compete in terms of standards with Western universities. However, this is a popular misconception and in the 21st century is simply not true. Many Chinese universities have increasingly excellent standards, with a number of universities ranked in the top 100 in the world. As education becomes globalised, China has seen the need to overhaul its education. This means that you can take a Chinese Language Programs safe in the knowledge that standards will be high.

Simply said, the benefits of Chinese Language Programs go far beyond the academic and linguistic advantages. Choosing a Chinese Language Program opens up a world of rich culture, exciting food and a country in the throes of incredible change. There is nowhere else in the world right now that feels so energized, and this makes it a truly exciting place to live. If you take on a Chinese Language Program with the desire to meet new people, learn about a new culture and take in everything that is happening in China at the moment, then you will certainly gain a tremendous amount from the course.

Perhaps China has not been somewhere you have thought about studying, but with the changes occurring in the world in the 21st century, it pays to be open-minded and look at all the options. Whether you decide to study here for years or even just a few months, Chinese Language Programs are one of the best ways to grow both academically and culturally.
