Law is a simple thing to understand under the definition that anything which falls under certain protocols to be obeyed, followed and adhered to. This simple definition has deepest and probably the most comprehensive dictionary reference available as this statement alone paves way for almost thousands of new statements and several different underlying facts which go well unnoticed as one hardly makes an effort to know about the things at the root level of the basic definition. Often there are cases where lack of proper law awareness makes one pay for the deed for which he isnâ€™t even responsible or has not a role to play part to. Lack of familiarity may be cited as a valid reason in a native country but across the globe, in a world where your language differs widely from the spoken language of the place where youâ€™ve gone to, in that case even the best of native law awareness canâ€™t help you as most of the such places decide the content of law books by their religious and pious conventions which at times are twisty enough to make you on the receiving end of the situation.

Also not even a law maker but a simple average common man will advise you along with the flow of the idiom, be a roman in Rome, just for the sheer fact that you donâ€™t get the freedom of speech, privileges to exercise your citizen rights as you are just a visitor for the country people where you are visiting.
