Article Side
A Brief Introduction of New Office Furniture in Singapore by Vincentpi

Article published on August 16th 2012 | Marketing

Unlike home furniture, office furniture is designed for the office. That is to say, executive desks, chairs used in offices are a little different from those at home. However, both traditional executive desks and chairs come with an inflexible and dull appearance. After sitting on these traditional chairs and working before traditional executive desks for a long time, we may be afflicted by the pains in our backs, shoulders, necks, and wrists. Since we spend one-third of our daytime more or less in working, it is essential for us to maintain a comfortable working station for high efficiency. Based on this, something must be changed in the office furniture in Singapore.

In the Singaporeâ€™s office furniture market, there is a wide variety of new-type products involving ergonomic chairs and adjustable desks, which are different from traditional office furniture in part and endorsed with the ANSI/ BIFMA and Greenguard certification for quality standards, product safety and the environment. These innovative, quality products can provide us with safety, convenience and fun. For customers and customers who excel in ambition, customer-focus, innovation, teamwork and superior execution in the selected segments and geographic areas, they are preferable than others.

As one novel kind of office furniture in Singapore, ergonomic chairs are designed to prevent office workers from back problems by supporting the lower back and promoting good posture. An ergonomic chair has the following features. First, they can be easily adjusted. Its pneumatic adjustment lever can be handled to allow the user to have the feet flat on the floor, thighs horizontal and arms even with the suitable height of the chair. Second, they offer users comfort with a wide range of width and depth. In general, the standard width is 20 inches more or less. Third, they have a lumbar adjustment. So, users can get the proper fit to support the inward curve of the lower back.

Based on traditional desks, ergonomic desks are produced to build up an ergonomic workstation quickly with good tools. They are suitable for all sorts of spaces. These desks can place the desktop computers at various locations, so they even allow us to keep standing while working before the computer. Placed in managerial offices, these desks with distinctive styles and adjustable height make those executives feel comfortable and keep high efficiency during work time.

All in all, these new items of office furniture in Singapore represent a new trend in office furniture. These new items not only cut away the shortcomings of the traditional items, but provide the office users with a favorable working station. In the Singapore market, these new items are becoming more and more popular.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/marketing-articles/a-brief-introduction-of-new-office-furniture-in-singapore.htm - Article Side

Vincentpi - About Author:
Resource From: a Office Furniture In Singapore And a Hospital Furnitures

Article Keywords:

office furniture in Singapore, hospital furnitures

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!