Article Side

B2B Portals - a Boom for All Business by Ahtisham Ahmed

Article published on December 23rd 2011 | Marketing

B2B portals are growing day by day and help the import export enterprises in carrying their business more effectively. These portals allow the traders to meet and interact with each other for business purposes.

A B2B portal can be explained as the source target for users that combines web links, features and services. In the beginning, it was used as a generic term for popular search engines and Internet service providers, like AOL, MSN and Yahoo, but in recent days has bought a revolution in the coverage and the convergence of web sites business, where a corporate portal or portal for information from the company acts as a source to employees, customers, suppliers and other partners in a company to access corporate information and Web services. B2B portals refer to websites that are liable to conduct e-commerce and management of a significant part of corporate business processes.

A B2B portal offers a great number of advantages to the users. That fits your business, with features such as quicker and simpler access to product information, faster response to customer requests and better support. This not only increases the base of existing customers, but also reduces the cost of acquiring new customers significantly. To allow a power business benefits of electronic commerce for the promotion and branding, for example, an export business. These B2B portals put together the entire market into one and you can choose from the variety. You can place a purchase order or buy products online with a credit card. Whole transaction is controlled by a consolidated job reduces the processing time of documents. As this research focuses on the enterprise directory and e-catalogs are a very good job. If you want to go further then see the comments from users and experts published on these websites, along with buying guides detailing the characteristics of the product.

In addition to providing the facility to its customers, B2B have much to offer international business functionality that increases the performance management system in the chain, internal messaging system and product content adding system. These portals not only promote the products and services on an international level but also increase your return on investment and profits.

Whenever you need to flood your business to the next level, this is the new option, other than traditional advertising, with additional revenue. In general, B2B portals are the mainstay of today's most important business enterprises and therefore play an influential role in the success of any business.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/marketing-articles/b2b-portals-a-boom-for-all-business.htm - Article Side

Ahtisham Ahmed - About Author:
Ahtisham Ahmed is an expert writer on online business promotion, and here he has shared information B2B portals. For more about to business directory of a kundan jewellery and a designer sarees, visit B2B Portal - Exportmart.com

Article Keywords:
B2B Portal, Business directory, B2B Marketplace

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!