When talking about the Samsung galaxy S3 S voice then Siri also comes into your mind. With the help of Siri you may fetch out many things such calendar stuff, weather, web search and so on. But there is a challenger of Siri in the market called Galaxy S3 S Voice. Earlier there were many gadgets that were using this voice recognition among them is the Blackberry so Siri was not the initial voice control app on the smart phones.

Apple has made very big claims for the Siri but understood very simple set of commands. The UK iphone owners are still experiencing a big problem and that Apple has not got a perfect deal for a local information provider. Like of you ask Siri to direct your home, what is there in the local cinema, finding out a restaurant or bad the traffic is, at that time you would get a similar sorry reply. Siri would answer only this "Sorry I can only look for the business in the United States".

So now Samsung has come forward with its own voice assistant gap in the new Galaxy S3 which would be arrival of Siri and the S Voice is created on the Vlingo Voice Talk app. A comparison is made between the both the gadgets that is between Siri and S Voice. In the first round it was asked from both the gadgets that what the today weather is. On asking from S Voice the Samsung vocal did not understood the statement very first time and ask me repeat it.

Then we said that what is the weather again it misses then we said today's weather, then also it does not understood the question and instead of that asks I like to do a web search for what the weather is. Then we tried many times and finally S voice answered that things looks promising and would return for the weather information but for the New York and not London so failed in this attempt. On asking this question from Siri that what the weather like and Siri informs helpfully that you have to turn to the location in the settings. And after Siri returns with a weather forecast so this round goes to Siri.
