Article published on January 23rd 2012 | Mobile Phones

If you are planning to purchase an international calling card for the first time in your life, there are more chances of being ripped-off. You may not get the same number of minutes as promised at the time of purchase or you may have to compromise on the quality. This article will surely help you avoid such circumstances.

Most of the companies that provide calling cards now days are mistrusted due to the past experiences of the users. Many people feel they have been cheated by their calling card providers stating that they do not comply with the terms and conditions mentioned prior to the purchase. Therefore many calling card companies where even investigated and they reached to a conclusion that calling cards used to make international cards should be correctly advertised revealing all the charges and fees associated with them.

International calling through phone cards is the most reliable and affordable mode of staying connected to your loved ones overseas provided that you get hold of the fine print. Companies who offer calling cards for international calling are required by law to reveal all the charges that are to be incurred.

Following are some of the main things that you should focus on when purchasing calling cards.

Expiry of the Calling Card

You must check for the expiry date of the calling card that you want to purchase. See whether you will be able to use the calling credit within the expiry time, if not, look for another calling card. If you do not want to go through this hassle you can simply choose a calling card that has no expiry date.

Connection Charges

This is one way to make up for the low charges associated with calling credit. Calling card providers charge a significant amount as connection fees which in you have to pay in order to use your calling cards for international calling. You may feel that the per-minute call rate to your destination is low, but the fee that is charged every time you make an international call is a major hit itself.

Various Hidden Fees

When using calling card for the purpose of international calling, make sure that there are no hidden charges that may add up to your overall telephone expense. They may be in the form of maintenance fee or surcharges etc.

Per-Second Billing

International calling cards are mostly billed on the basis of per-minute increments. However, of you really wish to save your money on international calling; you should look out for calling cards that are billed on per-second basis. With this you will only be paying for the talk time that you are actually using. In the case of per-minute billing, you are required to pay for the whole minute even if you talk for 15 seconds in that minute.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/mobile-phones-articles/how-to-avoid-being-betrayed-by-calling-card-companies.htm - Article Side

Thomasgalvin - About Author:
Find a International Calling and a calling cards New Zealand related information at a www.cardcall.co.nz/

Article Keywords:
Phone Cards New Zealand

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!