Samsung Rugby Smart emerges out as the most durable phone by Harry Smith

Article published on April 4th 2012 | Mobile Phones

According to Nathan Olivarez-Giles in Los Angeles times there has been conducted a very difficult test in the history of mobile industry to check the durability of a phone and the test was conducted on the Samsung Rugby Smart. The test was conducted by the famous Times Auto Critic, David Undercoffler, who tried to check the durability level of Samsung Rugby Smart by using the Bentley Continental GT Convertible which weighs more than 2000 kg.

But as was expected, the little durable body of Samsung Rugby Smart was not able to bear this much of force and pressure, and splintered and crushed in to pieces. Despite of this extreme test this Samsung Rugby Smart handset has cleared all the durability tests like dirt and mud rubbing test, throwing it up in air to the height of six feet and even the most critical test which, maximum phones in the market can fail, that is water submerging test.

May be that, the Samsung phone could not match up with the standards of a smartphone in fastness and features but is a roughest option while selecting for a durable handset. This durable Samsung Rugby Smart phone is available at approximately Â£63 ($100) with a contract of Two years exclusively from AT&T. Even when this Samsung phone was made sank for 25 minutes in water and collected back, it worked properly. It even survived in one meter of depth of water for Half an hour.

No one can detect these features by just looking at this phone because it comes under a sleek and compact design. Toughness of this gadget is provided by hard plastic backplate and rubberised bezel. The phone is enabled with Android operating system of 2.3 Gingerbread type and comes with a touchscreen of 3.7 inches with resolution of 480x800 pixels. The processor in this handset is of 1.4 Gigahertz enable with 512 Megabytes. The internal memory is of 4GB only but comes with the option of extending the memory with the help of MicroSd Card. This Samsung Rugby Smart is good for rough and tough users but is not-up-to-date for modern times and is quite weak in comparison with today's Smartphones.
